A Busy Time of Year

It is a beautiful early fall morning as I attempt to express my feelings on paper and to update all the activities here at the Galilean Home. Also, 71 years ago today, in Detroit, Michigan, a baby boy was born to Ben and Sarah Tucker. They named him Jerry and, by the grace of God, I am still at the helm of the Galilean Home fulfilling the calling that Sandy and I received four decades ago. She has received her reward already, leaving me behind to carry on.

This time of year is no doubt the busiest for us. School is in full swing and the Quilt Auction is around the corner. Actually, it will already be past us by the time you read this newsletter. The holiday season is just ahead of us which always creates a lot of activity amongst the children. The swimming pool is closed for the year, hogs are being butchered, all our hay is in the barn, and thanks to Shiloh Mennonite Church from Reading, Pennsylvania, our new chicken house is in operation. I have had a few speaking engagements with more on the horizon. Basketball and volleyball have taken a foothold in the school as that season is here also.

The most asked question by visitors is if I have moved into my cabin yet. The answer is no, not yet, but that day gets closer every day,

Becky and I, along with Michael and Hope Burt, our Born Free Directors, were presented with a "Community Service Award" by the Kentucky Council on Crime and Delinquency for outstanding service and commitment to the Kentucky Criminal Justice System. The award was given for our ministry of caring for infants who are born to women in prison. We traveled to Lexington, enjoyed a great meal at the Marriott Hotel, and received the recognition on September 8th.

Jerry and Becky receiving the Community Service Award from the KY Council on Crime and Delinquency

Since Mom has gone Home, Becky is doing her best to step into her shoes. Becky says she can step into them but will never be able to fill them. But, praise God, she is trying, which relieves a lot of stress and pressure off of this old man.

The Bread of Life Café is in the busiest time of year. The hot weather is gone and it is cool and beautiful, which brings people out of their air conditioned element. We get a lot of visitors and groups this time of year. Most, if not all, of the groups that eat at the Café do come here to the Home for a tour.

The Liberty Trading Post is also in its busiest time of year. Mom's idea of a secondhand store to handle all our overflow of donated items, mostly clothes, was another one of her brilliant ideas many years ago. We have six full-time employees who stay busy as bees. During these hard economic times, the store offers good, used clothes and accessories at reasonable prices for people who are really pinching pennies. It is a real asset to the community.

To sum up everything, we stay BUSY! That is the way I love it to be! But, all these activities and busy-ness would not be possible if it wasn't for our faithful supporters that stand with us and help shoulder all this workload. In all these years, I have never seen the economy in the shape it has been in now for over two years. Ministries, both large and small, really struggle as we do. The first thing people bump from their "to pay" list during hard times is usually the ministries they support. But, we have a heavenly Father that will not let us down. He did not bring us this far in 40 years to abandon us now. We just tighten our belts, water down the soup, hold our heads up and keep going. One of my favorite sayings is, "When the going gets tough, the tough get going." Another favorite is one that my mother embraced during the Great Depression, "Use it up, wear it out make it do, or do without."

I cannot put on paper exactly how much we appreciate your support. Every dollar counts. No donation is too small. I personally sign every thank-you-receipt for all donations. As long as I can, I will! Before old man winter (yes, he does stop in South Kentucky for awhile), come visit and see first hand where 100% of your support goes. I am here 24-7-365. Very rarely do I go anywhere other than a doctor's appointment, etc. Since Mom is gone, I feel my place is to stay and hold down the fort and be here for visitors. Of course, during the course of your visit venture down to the best little restaurant in these parts, or at least east of the Mississippi, for a home cooked meal you won't forget. With our friendly and helpful employees, I guarantee you will be blessed, not only here at the Home, but your belly will appreciate your Bread of Life experience. That is a promise!

Staying Busy in His Name,

Jerry —Jerry

From the father of one of our Born Free babies:

To the Staff—Hello, may God bless all of you! I have wanted to write for a few months now, but just could not put on paper how happy I am with all of you. The care that you showed my child will never be forgotten. Every time I think about her staying there when she was first born, brings joyful tears to my eyes. In my heart I feel like you all are God's angels.
